

PTA Livability: Code A, F and G Bulls by JPI

A new trait, Livability, is derived from the probability of a lactation not ending in death or on-farm euthanasia. Predicted transmitting abilities (PTAs) for cow livability (LIV) measure a cow's ability to stay alive while on the farm, whereas PTA for productive life (PL) measures a cow's ability to avoid either dying on the farm or being culled.

Because the scale reports cow livability and not mortality, positive PTAs are favorable. PTA is reported on a lifetime basis. Heritability is 0.013. For recent bulls with > 80% reliability, PTA LIV were correlated favorably to PTA for PL, daughter pregnancy rate, and somatic cell score; correlations with PTA for yield traits were low.

Cows that die result in a loss of income. For the Jersey breed, death accounted for 20.6% of cows that left the milking herd in 2015, following unspecified reasons (29.8%) and low production (22.0%).

Bulls are listed by A.I. marketing status in JPI order.
